

Right Up Your Street

PSHE Thursday 28th January 2021

LO: I can investigate how human rights apply to everyday life.

Have a look at this is a scene of everyday life – and human rights. It shows people asking for their rights, enjoying their rights or having their rights denied.

You are about to become human rights detectives:

- What do you notice in the picture?
- Where in the world might this (imaginary) street be?
- Is there anything in the picture that you would never see in this country?
- What is happening outside the sweet shop? Look very carefully at the woman inside and the boy running away.

Task:

Using three different coloured pens, can you circle the following things in the picture? (you can also look at the picture, and a list of the human rights, in the attached resource sheet)

Yellow Pen - a human right being denied;

Pink Pen – a human right being enjoyed or exercised;

Green Pen – a human right being asked for.
