

Tuesday 9 February

LO: I can identify and discuss the different characters and events in 'The Firework Maker's Daughter'.

I hope you have enjoyed listening to 'The Firework Maker's Daughter'. It is quite a short book, but it crams a lot into its pages. We meet lots of interesting characters, follow them on their adventures, and share their difficulties and triumphs.

Today I'd like you to take some time to think about the book and all the things that happened in it. You might like to think things through by yourself, but it is also fun and helpful to talk to someone else about it. If someone else at home has listened to the book you could chat together. If not, you could retell the story to them. Make sure you describe the characters in the story too.

There is a discussion prompt sheet on the home learning page you can use to support you in this.